Linked Contracts
Ilse Samoy and Marco B.M. Loos (eds.)

Linked Contracts

Intersentia Publishing Ltd.
Trinity House | Cambridge Business Park | Cowley Road
Cambridge | CB4 0WZ | United Kingdom
Tel.: +44 1223 393 753 | Email: mail@intersentia.co.uk

NUR 822

© 2012 Intersentia
Cambridge – Antwerp – Portland
www.intersentia.com | www.intersentia.co.uk

Cover picture: © Danny Juchtmans

No part of this book may be reproduced in any form, by print, photocopy, microfilm or any other means, without written permission from the publisher.
CONTENTS

List of authors ................................................................. xi

Introduction
Ilse Samoy and Marco B.M. Loos .................................. 1

I. Groups of contracts. An exploration of types and the archetype from a Dutch legal perspective
Sanne van Dongen ......................................................... 9

Introduction ................................................................. 9
Chapter I. Groups of contracts ........................................ 10
Chapter II. Judgments of the Hoge Raad ............................ 11
   Section 1. Jans/FCN ................................................. 11
   Section 2. Von Hohenmeiss/Arenda ............................. 12
Chapter III. The archetype group of contracts ..................... 13
   Section 1. German law .............................................. 13
      §1. The (moderated) “Trennunglehre” ......................... 14
         A. Case law Bundesgerichtshof .............................. 14
         B. Paragraphs 358–359a BGB .............................. 17
      §2. The “Einheitslehre” ........................................... 19
      Section 2. European consumer directives ................... 21
Chapter IV. Extensive interpretation of the archetype ........... 23
Chapter V. Other distinguishable types .............................. 25
   Section 1. Mooijman/Netjes: clear demand and supply side .. 25
   Section 2. Institutionalised groups of contracts ............... 27
Conclusion .................................................................. 28

II. The impact of voidness for infringement of Article 101 TFEU on linked contracts
Caroline Cauffman ......................................................... 29

Introduction ................................................................. 29
Chapter I. The impact of an infringement of Article 101 TFEU on linked agreements under EU law ................................................................. 30
Chapter II. A specific rule of national competition law extends the voidness of an agreement infringing the cartel prohibition to linked agreements ................................................................. 32
   Section 1. Legal provisions ................................................................. 32
   Section 2. Theories developed by case law and legal scholarship .... 34
Chapter III. A rule of general contract law extends the consequences of the voidness of an agreement infringing the cartel prohibition to linked agreements ................................................................. 36
   Section 1. Legal provisions ................................................................. 36
   Section 2. Theories developed by case law and legal scholarship .... 38
Chapter IV. The linked agreement itself is affected by a ground of voidness or voidability ................................................................. 39
   Section 1. Illegality, immorality and infringement of the public order ................................................................. 39
   Section 2. Defects of consent ................................................................. 44
      §1. Fraud ................................................................. 44
      §2. Mistake ................................................................. 48
      §3. Duress ................................................................. 50
      §4. Abuse of circumstances ................................................................. 50
Conclusion ........................................................................................................ 52

III. Linked contracts and the construction sector: A builder’s contractual obligation to warn the client about a risk that might emerge from a contract between the client and the designer
Joasia A. Luzak ........................................................................................................ 55
Chapter I. Contractual relations in the construction sector. Relevance of the ‘link’ ................................................................. 55
Chapter II. Concept of the obligation to warn in construction contracts regulated by Dutch law and the DCFR ................................................................. 56
Chapter III. Consequences of the designer’s default for the builder ........ 61
   Section 1. When should a builder have noticed a default? ........ 61
   Section 2. What happens if the builder does not perform his obligation to warn? ................................................................. 69
      §1. Causality ................................................................. 69
      §2. Solidary liability ................................................................. 73
      §3. Contributory negligence ................................................................. 75
Conclusion ........................................................................................................ 77
IV. Chains of Sales Contracts: Towards a European system of direct producers’ liability?
Mathias Hostens ................................................................. 79

Introduction ................................................................. 79
Chapter I. Need for a European system of direct producers’ liability? ............................. 81
   Section 1. Arguments in favour of a system of direct producers’ liability ......................... 81
      §1. Direct producers’ liability as a reflection of economic reality ................................. 81
         A. Producer at the origin of most product defects ................................................. 81
         B. Producers’ liability through chain of redress? .............................................. 82
      §2. Direct producers’ liability to achieve procedural economy .................................. 90
   Section 2. Arguments in favour of a European system of direct producers’ liability .......... 90
      §1. Increasing consumer confidence in cross-border shopping ................................... 91
      §2. Avoiding distortions of competition between businesses ..................................... 92
   Section 3. Evaluation of the arguments ........................................................................... 93

Chapter II. Model of a European system of direct producers’ liability ............................ 95
   Section 1. Basic structure of a European direct producers’ liability system .................... 95
      §1. Derivative liability along the contractual chain .................................................... 95
      §2. Objective extra-contractual liability ................................................................. 97
   Section 2. Grounds for European liability of the producer .......................................... 98
   Section 3. Beneficiary of the European direct claim .................................................... 101
   Section 4. Addressee of the European direct claim ..................................................... 102
   Section 5. Relation of European direct producers’ liability with final seller’s liability .... 104
   Section 6. Remedies associated with the European direct claim ................................ 105
   Section 7. Time limits applicable to the European direct claim .................................... 106

Chapter III. Harmonising strategies for direct producers’ liability ................................ 108
Conclusion .................................................................................. 112

V. Linked contracts in the DCFR, the Consumer Rights Directive and the Draft Optional Instrument
Tâm Dang Vu ................................................................. 115

Introduction ................................................................. 115
Chapter I. Linked contracts in the EU Directives before the Consumer Rights Directive .......... 117
   Section 1. The right of withdrawal and linked contracts ............................................ 117
Contents

Section 2. Doorstep Selling Directive 85/577/EEC and the Schulte and Crailsheimer cases ........................................... 119
Section 3. Linked contracts in the Timesharing Directive 94/47/EC ................................................................. 121
Section 4. Linked contracts in the Distance Selling Directive 97/7/EC ............................................................... 122
Section 5. Linked contracts in the Distance Marketing of Financial Services Directive 2002/65/EC .................. 123
  §1. History .................................................................. 125
  A. The Consumer Credit Directive 87/102/EEC .......... 125
  B. The implementation of the Consumer Credit Directive 87/102/EEC by the Member States ...... 126
  C. The revision of the Consumer Credit Directive 87/102/EEC ...................................................... 128
    A. Definition of linked credit agreement ............... 129
    B. Effects ...................................................... 130
§3. Ancillary services contracts in the Consumer Credit Directive ........................................................ 131
  A. (No) Definition of ancillary contract ............... 131
  B. Effects ...................................................... 131
Section 8. The need for harmonisation .......................................................... 133
Chapter II. Linked contracts in the DCFR .............................................................................................. 134
Section 1. Scope ................................................................ 134
Section 2. Definition of linked contract .................................................. 136
Section 3. Effects ................................................................ 138
Section 4. Conclusion ................................................................ 138
Chapter III. Ancillary contracts in the Consumer Rights Directive .................................................. 139
Section 1. Background and scope .......................................................... 139
Section 2. Definition of ancillary contracts in the Consumer Rights Directive ........................................ 140
  Section 3. Effects ................................................................ 140
Chapter IV. Ancillary contracts in the Proposal for a Regulation on a Common European Sales Law .................................................................................. 141
Section 1. Background .......................................................... 141
Section 2. Ancillary contracts in the Common European Sales Law .......................................................... 142
  Section 3. Related service contracts in the Common European Sales Law ........................................ 143
Conclusion ........................................................................... 144
Addendum ........................................................................ 145
VI. Linked contracts: Elements for a general regulation
Rodrigo Momberg Uribe

Introduction ......................................................... 153
Chapter I. The necessity for a general regulation ...................... 153
Chapter II. The state of the art: The present legal recognition of linked contracts ........................................ 157
  Section 1. European legislation .................................. 157
  Section 2. Non-legislative codifications or restatements ....... 158
Chapter III. Towards a general concept of linked contracts ........ 158
  Section 1. Plurality of contracts .......................... 159
  Section 2. Common purpose .................................. 159
Chapter IV. The effects of linked contracts .......................... 160
  Section 1. Internal effects .................................. 161
  Section 2. External effects .................................. 162
Chapter V. A (preliminary) proposal ............................... 162
  Section 1. A practical concept? .......................... 162
  Section 2. The revision of the principle of privity and the concept of contract parties .................................. 163
  Section 3. Linked contracts as an interpretative standard .... 163
  Section 4. Linked contracts as an operative standard ....... 163
LIST OF AUTHORS

Caroline Cauffman, Assistant Professor, Universities of Maastricht and Antwerp, Attorney-at-law

Tâm Dang Vu, Junior researcher, Institute of the Law of Obligations, University of Leuven and Hasselt

Mathias Hostens, Junior researcher, University of Leuven, Campus Kortrijk Lawyer, Liedekerke Wolters Waelbroeck Kirkpatrick, Brussels

Marco B.M. Loos, Coordinating programme leader Contract and Law of Obligations in general, Ius Commune Research School Professor of private law, in particular of European Consumer Law, University of Amsterdam

Joasia A. Luzak, Assistant Professor, Centre for the Study of European Contract Law, University of Amsterdam

Rodrigo Momberg Uribe, Assistant Professor, Faculty of Law, Austral University of Chile Honorary lecturer, Molengraaff Institute of Private Law, University of Utrecht

Ilse Samoy, Coordinating programme leader Contract and Law of Obligations in general, Ius Commune Research School Assistant Professor, Institute of the Law of Obligations, University of Leuven and Hasselt

Sanne van Dongen, LL.M., Junior researcher, Business and Law Research Centre, Radboud University Nijmegen