ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The author of this book has a lot of people to thank for assisting him, in various ways, in his research and preparing this material for publication. It so happened that I shared my idea of researching the subject with some of the organisers of a summer school organised by the School of Human Rights Research (SIM) in Utrecht and the Leuven University in 2001, and especially Professor Cees Flinterman and Ms Sanne Hirs. Being inspired by their positive reaction, I submitted an article on the topic to the Netherlands Quarterly for Human Rights and soon enough it was accepted for publication. I thus realised that the issues raised were of a wider interest and applied for a Doctoral research programme with SIM on the same research topic, freedom of expression in the context of the internet. Having been accepted to this programme and having been, moreover, awarded a two-year scholarship, has allowed me to really focus on my research and to have access to the knowledge of my promoters, colleagues and published material, so much more than I could ever had had access to in my own country. I have therefore very fond memories of SIM.

I want to express my deepest gratitude to my promoters, Professors Cees Flinterman, Fried van Hoof and Jan Kabel, each of whom contributed a different perspective to my work, often inviting me to examine aspects of which I would have probably not have thought otherwise. Their thoughtful remarks, advice and sometimes simply the questions asked were so often a source of inspiration and support which I cannot overestimate.

My two years at SIM were amongst the most pleasant I had until now, and that was not only because I could finally do just research but also and primarily because of the very nice people I worked with. Although researchers like me come and go each year, I was amazed at the friendly and close environment in this small SIM family. I was happy not only to discuss with my colleagues on serious topics but also to share with them bits of our various cultures. Dear Leo Zwaak, Ineke Boerefijn, Hans Werdmölder, Jenny Goldschmidt, Peter Malcontent, Rolanda Oostland, Nicola Jägers, Gentian Zyberi, Jeroen Gutter, Quirinne Eijkman, Mitsue Inazumi, Saima Hussein, Hilde Reiding, Birsen Erdogan, thank you for the good time spent together and the hours of inspiring discussions. Special thanks go to our trusted SIM librarians Saskia Bal and Maaïke Hogenkamp, whom I visited in their reserved knowledge domain so often. And I am sure that the administrative part of my work at SIM would have been much harder without the constant assistance, in so many ways, of Marcella Kiel and Maeyken Hoeneveld.

Publishing my first book, I discovered how tedious the process may be and how fast the time-limits pass. I was lucky to have the help of Titia Kloos and Willemien

Acknowledgments

Vreekamp in preparing the text for print and of Jane Griffith for English editing. Although I studied it while in Utrecht, I would not risk writing my summary in Dutch and so I have special thanks for Agnes van Steijn for translation.

As a foreigner in the Netherlands, I found much needed support of friends from home, but I also had the chance to meet and make new friends in Utrecht. I am thankful for all the interesting time spent together. I thank my wife Sorina for all her patience and for making me need to go to work in the morning and want to come home in the evening. Our little angel Oana's smile was an ocean of inspiration. Thank you, my parents Mihai and Raisa Cucereanu, for being there for me and for checking that I was not carried away with current work and forgot about finishing this book. As you can see, it is finally done.
